ASSOCIATED ARTISTS.

A New Enterprise in This City on the New York Model.

For several years past there has been a society in operation in the city of New York, composed of such artists as Tiffany & Co., Dora Wheeler, Will S. Gibson, and others of like prominence, who have been known as "The Associated Artists." Their object has been to take mutual advantage in the knowledge and use of means, so that the members may benefit the execution of works and the development of artistic growth among those who have been brought together.

Washington has cause for congratulation in the fact that there is now being organized in the city a society of artists, objects of a similar character.
The exhibition includes many well-known artists from the United States, and from abroad, and the "Associated Artists of Washington" will open to the public their parlors at 914 14th Street, for the exhibition and sale of original works of art for interior decoration.

The name of the association is "The Sons of M. B. Birrell," whose portrait on the wall of the room where the meeting is held is well known and favorably known has a reason.

He is one of the most talented artists in America, and the author of many famous paintings, and has received fourteen first prizes at the Royal (English) Art Society, and at the Royal Academy, and position at New Orleans, La., where he has charge as commissioner of an art department of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.
